

G. O. P. CONVENTION NOW ON IN CHICAGO

Warring Republican Factions in Titanic Struggle in Western Metropolis Over Party Presidential Nominee.

The warring Taft and Roosevelt forces gathered at the coliseum in Chicago on last Tuesday at noon for the opening of the republican National Convention with battle lines on both sides apparently holding firm and the leaders and delegates predicting that the session would mark an epoch in the annals of American politics. Rarely have ever the principals in a national political convention entered under greater stress of feeling than now permeates the republican gathering in Chicago. The very atmosphere is electric with bitterness and animosity. Thousands who could not obtain seats in the convention hall thronged the lobbies and vicinity of the coliseum believing a sensation of one kind or another would develop in the big hall at any moment, but the expected did not happen. Many political veterans declared it the worst crush of humanity within their convention experience.

Delegates began arriving at the convention hall an hour before the time set for the opening, and by noon when Chairman Victor Rosewater rapped the convention to order, the great auditorium was literally packed with delegates and spectators. There was a few moments silence while Rev. J. F. Galloway offered prayer; but pandemonium broke loose half an hour later, when James Watson, of Indiana, Taft floor leader, raised the point that the protest of Governor Hadley, of Missouri, the Roosevelt leader, against the temporary roll of delegates as made up by the national committee, was out of order until the convention had been organized. The point was sustained by the chair, and from that moment until adjournment at 7:45 p. m. there was a continual struggle between the daring and skillful parliamentarians of the contending factions.

The only real action taken in the convention on Tuesday that in any way indicated the strength of the opposing candidates was the election of a temporary chairman, when Elihu Root, of New York, won over Governor F. C. McGovern, of Wisconsin, by a vote of 558 to 502. Three were absent, two (Root and McGovern) did not vote, and there were thirteen scattering votes. This was, apparently, a Taft victory.

Governor Hadley later renewed his motion to substitute a Roosevelt list of delegates for the temporary roll made by the national committee. An agreement had previously been reached that after this motion was made the convention should adjourn until 11 a. m. Wednesday with the Hadley substitute list the unfinished business to be taken up immediately on convening of the convention Wednesday.

The following Virginians on Tuesday were given committee assignments: D. Lawrence Groner, Norfolk, platform and resolutions; Joseph L. Crupper, of Alexandria, organization; R. H. Angell, Roanoke, rules; L. P. Summers, Abingdon, credentials; R. A. Fulwiler, Staunton, to notify the President; John Paul, Harrisonburg, to notify the Vice-President.

WEDNESDAY.

The Roosevelt forces met their second defeat in the Republican National Convention today, in a session which had for its feature a remarkable demonstration of nearly an hour in honor of Governor Hadley, of Missouri, floor leader of the Roosevelt forces. All the Roosevelt delegates joined the demonstration, while many Taft states lent voice. This remarkable demonstration is interpreted by many as a forerunner of a Hadley boom for president.

Hadley led the fight on the convention floor today to oust ninety-two contested Taft delegates and to seat the same number of Roosevelt delegates. The convention refused to entertain the motion by 564 to 510. This transferred the fight to the committee on credentials, which will take the matter up at noon Thursday.

The gathering of the delegates in Chicago this week forms the fifteenth national convention held by the republican party since its birth more than half a century ago.

The first convention was in Philadelphia in 1856, and Edward D. Morgan called it to order on June 17th. Robert Emmett, of New York, was temporary chairman and Henry S. Lane, of Pennsylvania, permanent chairman, with David Wilmont as head of the committee on resolutions. The platform declared against the extension of slavery into new states and territories, demanded the admission of Kansas to statehood, and advocated the building of the Union Pacific Railroad. The candidates nominated were John C. Fremont—he defeating John McLean, of Ohio, on the first ballot—and William L. Layton, of New York. The ticket was beaten by the democratic headed by Buchanan.

The second, but in point of importance really the first, convention of the party, was held in Chicago, assembling June 13, 1860. The platform declared for the preservation of the Union, denounced the extension of slavery, and advocated tariff laws "which would encourage the development of the industrial interests of the country." Abraham Lincoln was nominated for president on the third ballot and Hannibal Hamlin, of Maine, for vice-president on the second ballot. This ticket was successful, easily defeating the divided democracy.

The third convention met in Baltimore on June 7, 1864. The platform declared for the carrying on of the war, advocated a constitutional amendment forever prohibiting slavery anywhere in the Union, returned thanks to the federal soldiers and sailors, and endorsed the emancipation proclamation. Abraham Lincoln was renominated, receiving all the votes except those of Missouri, which were cast for Gen. Grant. Andrew Johnson, of Tennessee, was nominated for vice-president, and the ticket elected at the polls.

The conventions held since the war are as follows:

Chicago, May 20, 1868—Ulysses S. Grant, of Illinois, and Schuyler Colfax, of Indiana.

Philadelphia, June 5, 1872—Ulysses S. Grant, of Illinois, and Henry Wilson, of Massachusetts.

Cincinnati, June 14, 1876—Rutherford B. Hayes, of Ohio, and William A. Wheeler, of New York.

Chicago, June 2, 1880—James A. Garfield, of Ohio, and Chester A. Arthur, of New York.

Chicago, June 8, 1884—James G. Blaine, of Maine, and John A. Logan, of Illinois.

Chicago, June 19, 1888—Benjamin Harrison, of Indiana, and Levi P. Morton, of New York.

Minneapolis, June 7, 1892—Benjamin Harrison, of Indiana, and Whitelaw Reid, of New York.

St. Louis, June 7, 1896—William McKinley, of Ohio, and Garret A. Hobart, of New Jersey.

Philadelphia, June 13, 1900—William McKinley, of Ohio, and Theodore Roosevelt, of New York.

Chicago, June 21, 1904—Theodore Roosevelt, of New York, and Charles W. Fairbanks, of Indiana.

Chicago, June 16, 1908—Wm. H. Taft, of Ohio, and James S. Sherman, of New York.

The convention this week is the seventh the republican party has held in Chicago. Of the candidates named in that city, Lincoln and Garfield were assassinated. Blaine died a disappointed, if not a heartbroken, man. Arthur, who succeeded Garfield, lived to realize the full meaning of political ingratitude. Harrison, although renominated at Minneapolis, was defeated. The defeat of Grant in the convention which met in Chicago in 1880 was the occasion of a bitter feud in the party, and incidentally led to its defeat four years later. Mr. Roosevelt was nominated in Chicago in 1904 and Mr. Taft in 1908. These two of the seven standard bearers named by the party in Chicago conventions, are the only ones living today.

Death of Mrs. J. D. Alexander

Thirteen weeks ago Mrs. J. D. Alexander was confined to her room with an attack of uremia. From the first it was seen there was little hope for her recovery, and all her loved ones could do was to make her remaining days peaceful. On Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock the death angel mercifully touched the tired, drooping eyelids and she passed to that beautiful heritage which follows a well spent life.

Mrs. Alexander prior to her marriage was Miss Margaret Peery, daughter of the late Frank Peery, of Five Oaks, and had lived the greater part of her life in this town and county.

Up to the time of her last illness she was active in many charities and benevolences. The W. C. T. U. and Woman's Missionary Club will miss her at their meetings.

The funeral services were held on Wednesday morning at the Presbyterian church, and the remains laid to rest by loving hands in Maplewood cemetery.

Besides her husband, Captain J. D. Alexander, nine children survive her, namely: Dr. Harvey G. Alexander, of Deal Island, Md.; Mrs. S. W. Aston, of Lebanon; Mrs. Dinwiddie Kilgore, Mrs. F. D. Kitts and J. D. Alexander, Jr., of Norton; Mrs. J. G. Boston, Mrs. J. P. Harman, Charles L. and J. Frank Alexander, of this place.

William and Mary Summer School

Dublin, Va., June 18
The opening of the William and Mary summer school is set for tomorrow. Six professors and a few students are here already and each incoming train brings other arrivals to help swell the total.

Southwest Virginia should see to it that her sons and daughters are educated, if not here, elsewhere. We had only eighteen in William and Mary last session who claimed the southwest as their home. In most every case the boys from the mountains "made good." In the literary societies six medals were offered for improvement in the different phases of literary work. Two of the six came to southwest Virginia. In excellence, there were four medals given—two in oratory and two in debate. Two of these came to the southwest also—the debator's medal being won by W. M. Grimley, of Russell county, and the oratorical medal by H. L. Harris, of Wise county. Mr. Harris won a scholarship and two medals during the year. We would enjoy having your son with us here during the summer session or at Williamsburg in September. Think of the future and plan for it now.

Mrs. Jane Wohlford Dead.

Mrs. Jane Wohlford, of Mechanicburg, Bland county, died at her home on the 12th instanc. She was 69 years of age, and for some time had been a sufferer from rheumatism. She was a native of Bland county, and spent the greater part of her life there. Mrs. Wohlford was a most estimable lady, and related to many of the prominent families of that county.

Among the sons surviving Mrs. Wohlford is Wm. T., now trainmaster for the Carolinas, Clinchfield and Ohio Railway at Dante, and a former resident of North Tazewell, and who married Miss Ethel Burkholder of that place. Another son is R. V. Wohlford, of Coeburn, treasurer of Wise county.

Church Improvements.

The congregation of the Main street M. E. Church at this place have decided on some extensive improvements to their building. The plans are not complete as yet, but are tentatively: to remodel the front, extend the auditorium back to provide rooms for the Sunday school, better lighting facilities and the installing of steam heat.

Anent the latter a good story is told. The pastor, Rev. E. E. Wiley, and the venerable local clergyman, Rev. George Bustin, were discussing the improvements. Rev. Bustin, as his friends know, is English, with a Cockney accent that indicates he was born within the sound of Bow Bells. During the discussion Rev. Bustin asked:

"Brother Wiley, 'ave you made any harangements for the 'eating'?"

"Oh, no, Brother Bustin," replied Rev. Wiley, "we'll feed them on spiritual food."

"Ho!" said Rev. Bustin, "you don't understand me. Hi mean the stove, the stove, the warming hup hof the room. You know, Hi'm Hinglish."

With this explanation, Rev. Wiley proceeded to tell him of the plans for the steam heating.

A Big Problem.

Mr. John D. Peery, of Gary, W. Va., spent Sunday with his family in North Tazewell. Mr. Peery is managing owner of the firm of J. D. Peery & Co., at Gary, and in speaking of the excellent business now being done by the mining operations on the Tug Fork branch of the Norfolk and Western, he said the problem of feeding the people on the branch was becoming a serious one; that not only his own but the other stores were worked to their full capacity, and in his own case he required four teams to be on the go all the time—one whose only duty was to bring the incoming stuff from the depot and cars and three to deliver the goods to their customers. This, in view of the fact that they are an independent store, without the advantages of the com-ny store scrip trade, makes their showing all the more wonderful. It is a lesson to the people of this county also.

With one of the best cash markets in the world right at our doors, the proper advantage is not being taken of it. The fertile valleys of this county should be in truck, small fruit and poultry farms, as it is only by intensive cultivation and taking advantage of this favorable market that the lands of this county can be made to pay the interest on the investment and a producer's profit on their valuation. The small farm, under the care of their owners or with high class, permanent tenants, is the only salvation of the problem—not only of the "high cost of living" but of the laborers in the coalfields living at all. The owners who realize this first will be the ones to get the cream of this excellent market.

Congressman Bascom Slemph, of this district, along with other members of the House of Representatives, seems to have fallen a victim to the epidemic of baseball fever, which at the present is sweeping over Washington to such an extent that legislative as well as business matters are almost at a standstill in the National Capital. Great preparations all through the past week had been going for the game in Washington on last Saturday between the democratic and republican teams of the lower house, in which Congressman Slemph was to hold down first base for G. O. P. team, but rain came down in torrents, causing the game to be postponed to a later date. We will venture the assertion that if the Ninth district Congressman exhibits the same good judgment and far-sightedness in dealing with his democratic rivals on the baseball field that he does in blocking their plays and tricks in political campaigns, his team will win hands down when the game is played.

Work of The W. C. T. U.

The Demorest Medal Contest, held in Main street Methodist church under the auspices of the local Woman's Christian Temperance Union on last Saturday night, was a great success. Four young men: Messrs. Joseph Lealie, Lapsley Carson, Lindsay McGuire and Kenneth Patty, competed for the medal, and on account of the general excellence of the work the committee had a hard time deciding on the winner, but awarded the prize to Mr. Carson. The singing of the chorus was a feature of the evening. A large crowd was present and all enjoyed the evening.

The work of this worthy association is not all public. They have a number of useful enterprises that they carry on without any flourish of trumpets, one of them being the observation, on stated days, of the Flower Mission, by visiting jails, asylums and other public institutions for the care of the less fortunate of their fellow creatures, and by song and prayer service and the distribution of flowers try to bring sunshine into the lives of these unfortunates. On last Sunday the Flower Mission was conducted at the county jail, the services being led by Rev. T. A. Repass, Jr. After the children had sung, the inmates of the jail took up the singing, and at the close of the services expressed themselves as greatly benefitted by the visit of the mission.

Town Council Meets.

During the delay awaiting the arrival of the members of the council on last Friday at the mayor's office, there was an informal discussion as to the enforcement of the ordinance fining councilmen who are late at meetings $1.00. In this and later discussions the sense of the council was that the ordinance and the statutes of the state should be enforced regardless of persons violating the same.

The drought brought the question of the water supply to the fore again, and the mayor was instructed to take a ninety-day option from A. Z. Litz on the Fish Pond spring and enough land surrounding same to protect the purity of the water supply, for $1,750. It was also the opinion of the council that the option on the Whitman spring east of town for $800 should be closed before its expiration in September.

Councilmen May and Harman were appointed a committee to examine the spring near G. T. Gerald's east of town, located in Buckhorn mountain, and ascertain if it's available for future water supply.

A. S. Higginbotham appeared before the council in the matter of establishing the lines of Marion avenue, in order to get the lines of the property he recently bought south of town straightened out, and a survey of same submitted by Mr. Higginbotham was adopted as the lines of the avenue.

The state statute regulating automobiles and similar vehicles was adopted into the ordinances of the town.

Joseph Kelly asked the council what license would be required for a garage and auto livery. No price was agreed on, but it was stated it would be reasonable.

In discussing allowances for paupers it was decided that in some instances the amount was too great, and ordered that same be reduced. It was also decided to notify the county of indigents who recently moved into the city, and are liable to become charity wards.

The following claims were allowed: C. T. Peery & Co., $157.15; J. S. Thompson, $40.36; Hawkins' Pharmacy, $7.35; J. R. Gildersleeve, Jr., $5.00.

George Not So Truthful, After All.

Every boy has read, with a glow of pride and no little doubt, the beautiful story about George Washington and the cherry tree. But no boy and but few grown men are aware of the fact that, if George had the habit of never telling a lie in his youth, he got bravely over it in manhood. In the records of Fairfax county, Virginia, in which Mount Vernon is situated, there is still existing in the fading handwriting of the clerk in the year 1764 the record of the finding by the grand jury of an indictment against "George Washington, gentleman," for perjury in swearing falsely to his return of taxable property. Further records of the case have been lost, so we are left in doubt as to the result.

This book of records has had an adventurous career. In 1861, when the Union army, under McDowell, invaded Virginia and took possession of Fairfax courthouse, a Pennsylvania soldier seized the book and carried it away to his northern home as a trophy. After his death the court administered upon his estate and order the book returned to Fairfax county, which was done, and it is now back on its old shelf in the courthouse of that county. It was not until its return and a careful inspection by some inquisitive antiquarian that it was discovered that the great George Washington, who was supposed never to have told a lie, had been guilty of a pretty big one.
